YANKS CAN WIN PENNANT TODAY IN THREE WAYS

Cleveland's Only Hope is to Win All and Rivals Lose All.

But for a league rule that compels them to play off their postponed game of yesterday with Philadelphia today at the Polo Grounds as part of a doubleheader, the Yankees would today have the pennant clinched. If that game had been wiped off the slate and the Yankees lost their remaining games they would win the pennant even if the Indians captured their two scheduled games. The standing in this case would be:

	W.	L.	P.C.
New York	96	57	.625
Cleveland	96	58	.623

A victory for the Yankees today in one of their games will clinch the pennant for them even if they lose their other two games and Cleveland wins theirs two. The standing at the end of the season will then be:

	W.	L.	P.C.
New York	96	57	.627
Cleveland	96	58	.623

If the Yankees find it impossible to play one of their remaining three games they will likewise be assured of the pennant, even though they lose their other two games and Cleveland wins its last two. The standing then would be the same as if the game of yesterday had been cancelled instead of being transferred to the Polo Grounds.

But, if Cleveland should win their two remaining games and the Yankees lose their three, the Indians would win the pennant and the final standing would be:

	W.	L.	P.C.
Cleveland	96	58	.623
New York	95	58	.621

On the other hand, "Pop" Warner's eleven is quite as bulky, quite as experienced and quite as powerful as the Eastonians. Warner has been working his squad hard ever since the athletes reported and there is no intention of losing the victory through any lack of preparation. It's a toss-up which will win today, Pitt or Lafayette.

Holy Cross lost to Harvard last year by a single field goal, the final score being 3 to 0. Cleo O'Donnell, the Holy Cross coach, is convinced now that his team can overcome that margin today and emerge from the fray a winner. Holy Cross is lighter and lacks capable punters, but in everything else ranks on a par with Harvard. It is likely to lose by just that margin, too.

AT LEAST TWO BIG GAMES ON GRID TODAY IN DOUBT

By LOUIS A. DOUGHER.

At least two football games booked for today promise to be bitterly fought from beginning to end. At Easton, Pa., Pittsburgh and Lafayette meet and up at Cambridge, Mass., Holy Cross tackles the Crimson. It is a foregone conclusion that the winners of these games will be well aware they have gone through a man-sized conflict. It is also possible that Swarthmore, in opening the Princeton schedule, may throw a fright into the Tiger eleven.

Lafayette, coached by "Suds" Sutherland, a former star forward at Pittsburgh, has been preparing to take the Panthers into camp. Sutherland has the team capable of meeting Pitt on equal terms, and if defeat comes today it will be charged to lack of preparation—that's all. Certainly, Lafayette thinks itself fully as good as Pitt.

On the other hand, "Pop" Warner's eleven is quite as bulky, quite as experienced and quite as powerful as the Eastonians. Warner has been working his squad hard ever since the athletes reported and there is no intention of losing the victory through any lack of preparation. It's a toss-up which will win today, Pitt or Lafayette.

Holy Cross lost to Harvard last year by a single field goal, the final score being 3 to 0. Cleo O'Donnell, the Holy Cross coach, is convinced now that his team can overcome that margin today and emerge from the fray a winner. Holy Cross is lighter and lacks capable punters, but in everything else ranks on a par with Harvard. It is likely to lose by just that margin, too.

The Princeton Tigers open their season today with no less formidable a foe than Swarthmore. Last fall the Tigers won, 17 to 6, only after a tough struggle and the Little Quakers are loaded for bear today. They may hold Princeton to even a closer score today than was the case last season.

While many sighs have been heard from the direction of Annapolis, the Navy should run rings around North Carolina State. The Raleigh team caught the Middlenap last fall and won, 14 to 7, largely through the use of a forward pass and the magnificent work of the line. Bob Folwell means to erase that bitter memory today by swamping the Southerners.

Rutgers defeated Maryland, 6 to 0, last year, catching "Curly" Byrd's eleven in poor shape. This season the College Parkers have been making special preparations to clean up Rutgers and that's the tip from Maryland on today's contest. Maryland has gone to Jersey with every belief in its ability to win from Foster Sanford's team.

Easy for Georgetown. Georgetown's gridiron campaign of 1921 gets under way at American League Park today, with Lebanon Valley as the victim. The Blue and Gray has not been out long enough to be in the best of physical shape, but the squad is large enough to provide plenty of substitutions whenever the players become exhausted and the Pennsylvania will probably have a rough afternoon of it out at Georgia avenue.

The Hilltoppers are placing on the field today a line composed of giants. Indeed, from tackle to tackle, the Blue and Gray will average about 195 pounds. Kimball weighs 228 pounds, being the heaviest. Werts, at center, is the lightest, and he tips the beam at 180 pounds.

Paul Byrne, last year's star at Georgia, will start today's game in the backfield, flanked by Flavin and McQuade. He has been showing up well in the scrimmages at the game when he may become the regular fullback.

George Washington opens its scheduled at Charlottesville. If the Hatchettites start well, they may surprise the Orange and Blue by their strength. If they muddle their opening plays, they may be wallowed to a fare-thee well. George Washington has a young, green team which may not hit its stride till November.

Coch. Bob's Brooklanders also make their plunge into the campaign, facing Richmond in the Virginia capital today. C. U. is said to have the best material even in uniform there. With Robb in charge, the team should make an excellent record for itself.

TWENTY-SIX SAFE HITS IN SIXTY-ONE CHANCES

"Pop" Young, of the Tigers, had hit safely his last fifteen games, when Jess Zachary slipped him the stop ball. While hitting them Young banded off twenty-six hits in sixty-one attempts for a percentage of .426 and tallied sixteen runs.

Will Play Today.

Central High will begin its football season this afternoon in the Mt. Pleasant stadium with the Charlotte High Military Academy of Maryland as their guests. Coach Metzler has his men in good shape for the game and hopes to wipe out the memory of the 0-6-0 game of last season.

WILL HAVE HIS DAY

JESSE CLYDE MILAN, Of Linden, Tenn., field captain of the Griffins and for thirteen years a member of the Washington baseball club. During that time his wholehearted efforts, his manliness on and off the field, and his ability as a high-class ball player have endeared him to thousands of Washingtonians. They will honor him tomorrow at the ball park when a gift from the bugs will be presented to him.

PRINCETON OPENS SEASON AGAINST LITTLE QUAKERS

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 1.—Princeton opens its football season here today, facing the Little Quakers from Swarthmore. The Tigers face one of the hardest, if not the hardest, schedule in years, and probably the most difficult in the East. After the Swarthmore game come Colgate, the Navy, Chicago, Virginia, Harvard, and Yale on successive Saturdays with the Navy and Yale games away from home.

The line, from end to end, has some of the best material ever seen at Old Nassau. Capt. Stan Keck at tackle, a veteran of two years' standing, is a wonder in either defensive or offensive work. He weighs about 200 pounds and can place kick with surprising accuracy from the forty-five-yard mark or less.

For the other tackle position there is Bob Hooper, also on Mike Callahan's eleven. Hooper, although not as experienced as Keck, played very well last year and has been going well in practice this spring. Fred Rutan, an old Hill School star, is also on the squad, but is a trifle light. Other candidates are Johnson and Snider of last fall's Omelettees.

The two most likely ends just now are Ed Stinson and Snively. Stinson, who is captain of the swimming and lacrosse teams, was a wingman on last season's eleven, and Snively was on Nat Poe's Omelettees.

Stock Gaines is steadily improving and may spring a surprise before long. He is a big boy, over six feet tall, and fast for his size. Gray, substitute last fall; Jim Rose of the Omelettees, Sadler of the 1924 freshmen, Scott, another member of the famous scrubs, are also reporting daily. Lin Gordon, substitute halfback last year, has been switched to end recently and, although somewhat unaccustomed to his new position, is coming along nicely.

Baker and Bill Morgan are the two outstanding guards, each over 200 pounds. Carey is also looming up as a possibility. If Al Wittmar is kept at guard, Carey may find a regular berth there. Among the candidates for center stand out head and shoulders above the others—Louis Liscomb and Don Griffin. Joe Cooper, substitute last year until he was hurt, and Howard Baer, 1924 freshman center, are also back.

Don Lourie has a monopoly on the

VIRGINIA TECH GETS BIG TEST AGAINST INDIANS

William and Mary is Said to Have Best Team in History of College.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Oct. 1.—The Virginia Tech football eleven will get a severe test this afternoon when they go against Bill Fincher's Indians from William and Mary. The aborigines under the tutelage of the famous all-American from Georgia Tech have the best team in their history and it will be anything but a lead-up game for the Techmen.

If the locals can emerge with a two-touchdown margin they will have done their bit and then some. The Gobler team has been greatly strengthened this week by the arrival of Harold Hess, formerly of Penn State. Hess will play fullback. He weighs 195 pounds and is the best punter that has been seen on Miles Field since the palmy days of Emory Hodgson, Tech's greatest in this department.

BRENTWOOD WILL MEET KNICKERS TOMORROW

Brentwood will meet Knickerbockers on the Knicks' diamond tomorrow. The suburban nine is confident of breaking the Knicks' winning streak of seventeen straight and thereby running their own wins to thirty-one straight.

Brentwood will challenge the winner of the Elks-Gibraltar series for the championship of Washington and Prince Georges county.

Batting Rampage Over.

Levin Fonseca of the Reds went on a hitting rampage that had endured for ten successive contests, when "Speed" Martin applied the brakes September 28. Fonseca during his stretch of hitting came through with 17 safeties in 36 batting tries for a percentage of .472.

LEON GOSLIN IS SHINING IN THE OUTFIELD FOR GRIFFS

By BURT WHITMAN.

BOSTON, Oct. 1.—Old Fox Clark Griffith always maintained that it was better to catch a rookie young and have him with the club during the fog end of the season than to have him try to work his way into the line-up the following spring.

And Leon Goslin, the kid outfielder from the Columbia, S. C., club, of the Sally League, seems to be a case in point. His single and double yesterday scored four runs for the Senators and made it practically impossible for the Red Sox to usurp the Senators' position at the bottom of the first division.

He is breaking in with a vengeance. In the first game of the series here he made a dandy impression, and was particularly effective circling around up and down on that difficult left field bank at Fenway Park, and he took a good cut at the ball against Sam Jones. But yesterday he was pretty near that whole works—he and old Zeb Milan.

In the early part of the game Goslin made a life-and-death dash for a floater off Foster's bat. It seemed destined to drop safely for two bases just inside the left field line. But Goslin gave it a great battle, saw at the last moment that he could not reach it unless he left his feet, so took a header.

They take different breaks, you see, and the funny part of it was that Goslin then did not have a chance, though he chased one foul drive right up to the barrier, which keeps the gamblers safe from the ball players they sometimes risk with impunity, if the odds are sweet enough.

George Mogridge was not so unfortunate as was Walter Johnson on the preceding day. For the Red Sox hit Mogridge hard. But it would seem that the chief of the chief Senators hit Bullet Joe Bush. The difference was that the Senators made every one of their seven hits count in the scoring of the six runs.

Bush was just wild enough to give two bases on balls in the sixth inning, both of which worked their way into runs when Goslin came across with a very timely single.

McBride is Sure.

McBride is certain now that his team will finish in the first division, and in fact says he never doubted it these last few days. But it would have been disagreeable for the Senators if the Sox had won again yesterday. They could have gone into the lead by taking both ends of the double-header today from the toga toters.

Brickson, Phillips, Acosta, and Zachary are ready for the assignment to go out there this afternoon against the Sox. Thormahlen, Karpis, Myers and Russell are all set to go to the hill for the Duffys.

No story about the Senators in Boston is complete without saying something about Sam Rice. He robbed Pratt of what looked like a possible home run to the very deep center field flag pole in the sixth inning. Sammy turned with the slap of stick against the ball and rushed for the suburbs. He just made it and he covered an unbelievable distance, making the catch well out beyond the center field corner of the distant bleachers and not many strides away from the flag pole.

He was the subject of a conversation here a few days ago, in which Red Sox and Cleveland Indians took part, and they rated him the fastest man in the American League "when he wanted to be the fastest."

ARMY POLO TEAMS IN ACTION IN TOURNAMENT

On Monday the Sixth Division four, Camp Grant, will meet the Third Artillery team. Tuesday will bring the Third Cavalry and the first team of the War Department together. The semi-finals will be played on Thursday, when the winners of Saturday and Monday will clash. The winners of Tuesday and Thursday will meet in the finals.
